Communist China Moves Armada Of 1,200 Planes

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—The Chinese Nationalists said Friday a Communist Chinese armada of up to 1,200 jet aircraft was being moved to newly-built bases closer to Formosa.

The United States charged that in building up strength at the new airfields, some of them only a few minutes' flying time from Formosa, Communist China was trying to "increase tensions and raise the specter of war" in the Far East. The charge was made by the State Department in Washington.

A radio Peiping, meanwhile, claimed that four Chinese nationalist planes were intercepted over the Fukien coastal area Thursday night and that one was damaged in an air battle with Communist jets.

Prepare Invasion

Announcement of the Communist air redeployment was made by Rear Adm. Liu Hsu-tu, a Defense Ministry spokesman. He said "the Communists must have prepared their plans to invade Taiwan (Formosa) and its offshore islands."

Liu said over-all Communist air strength on the south China coast opposite Formosa had not changed much, but by bringing part of their air fleet closer the Reds have "affected our air supremacy over the Taiwan (Formosa) Strait."

Move MIG 17's

Nationalist intelligence reports said more than 200 supersonic Russian-built MIG 17's had been moved recently into three coastal airfields in Fukien and Kwangtung provinces.

Nationalist armed forces, police and civil defense units have been placed on wartime alert, and the government is considering proclaiming a state of emergency.

Military observers in Formosa expressed doubt, however, that a major military outbreak was in the offing. The Chinese Communist government, they said, knew that any attack on Formosa or the Pescadores would meet with massive retaliation from the U.S. 7th Fleet and American planes in the Far East area.

The United States is committed by treaty to come to the defense of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government in the event of a Communist assault on his island strongholds.

U.S. Accuses Chinese Reds Of War Threat

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States accused Communist China Friday of trying to "increase tensions and raise the specter of war" with its buildup of jet fighter strength near Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa stronghold.

The charges was levelled by State Department spokesman Joseph W. Reap. He noted that the action has been accompanied "by the usual flow of Chinese Communist broadcasts threatening to 'liberate' Taiwan (Formosa)."

Reap said this is happening "at a time when world-wide Communist propaganda is taking seriously about peace."

U.S. Watching

He said this country is "watching closely" Red China's large-scale shipments of "Soviet-type jet fighter planes" to several previously unoccupied coastal airfields a few minutes' flying time from Formosa.

Reports of the jet fighter buildup began a reaching Washington "three or four weeks ago," Reap said.

The spokesman said he did not know exactly the types or total of aircraft involved. Other officials said they were latest model MIG 17 and MIG 19 fighter planes.

At Taipei, the capital of Formosa, the Nationalist Chinese Defense Ministry said that 1,100 to 1,200 Red warplanes were poised along the south China coast facing Formosa. Chiang's government ordered all military forces, police and civil defense units into wartime alert.

He's Probably On Cloud Nine

NEW YORK (UPI)—Authorities discovered Friday that Abe Nadie, 71, a tuberculosis patient at Sea View Hospital for 24 years, has been taking narcotics for 50 years.

Investigators, suspicious of foul envelopes Nadie has been receiving through the mail, discovered narcotics in a letter he received this morning.

Doctors said Nadie surprisingly seemed none the worse for taking the stuff.

"If you think that's something," Abe told police, "my 81-year-old brother has been on it all his life and he feels just fine."

Ex-Teamster Organizer Admits Lie Another Witness Tells Of Threats Since Quitting

WASHINGTON (UPI)—

A former organizer, trembling with fright or nervousness, confessed Friday that he lied in defense testimony at the 1955 dyna-miting trial of the union's officials in Minneapolis.

He was followed in the Senate Rackets Committee witness chair by another witness who said almost in tears that his life "has been a living hell" since he testified against the teamsters last year.

The admitted perjurer was George Francis Heid, a co-defendant in the Minneapolis trial with Gerald Connely, head of Local 548, and others. He said Connely had called himself a "buddy" of Teamster President James R. Hoffa and had quoted Hoffa as telling him to "get rough" if necessary in an organizing drive.

The other witness, Arthur L. Morgan, of Minneapolis, said he and his family have lived under constant threats and harassments since he broke with the teamsters last year and formed an independent laborers union.

Ricca Tight-Lipped

They testified after Paul (the Waiter) Ricca, reputed former leader of the Chicago crime syndicate, refused to talk about the sale of his palatial summer home to the Teamsters Union for almost $150,000.

Through mixup or design, the two Detroit locals which bought the wonded estate near Long Beach, Ind., got title to about half the acreage—including one side of the tennis court and one small corner of the swimming pool.

Brother Of Hoffa Queried On Arson Job

FLINT, Mich (UPI)—Teamster President James Hoffa's brother was questioned Friday in the investigation of an arson job that backfired and cost Frank Kierdorf his life.

State Atty. Gen. Paul Adams said William Hoffa, a business agent for the union, was among the many teamsters officers and Kierdorf associates being questioned about the deliberate burning of a dry cleaning establishment here late Sunday.

Praised Chehab

"That is why every wise politician conscious of the responsibility he shoulders demands that U.S. troops stay in the country to help restore national unity, peace, and stability," he said.

3 Bomb Blasts Rock Calm Of Beirut, Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Three

bomb explosions—the second outburst of terrorism since last week's presidential election—shattered the uneasy calm of this capital city Friday.

Two persons were killed and four injured in the first blast, at 6:50 a.m. in the Cafe Ben Arous, a small coffee shop on the main square whose pro-Chamouni owner had defused the opposition's general strike call by remaining open during three months of Lebanese rebel strike.

Less than an hour later, the second explosion occurred in front of a variety store in a narrow alley of the market place.

Third Blast

The third blasted in front of a rubber goods store across the street from government headquarters at 11:30 a.m. No one was injured in the second two explosions. There was only material damage.

There was no indication whether the bombings indicated a return to the violent phase of the revolution that began May 10 in opposition to the alleged intention of President Camille N. Chamoun to try to succeed himself. On Thursday of last week, parliament elected a compromise candidate, Maj. Gen. Fuad Chehab, to succeed Chamoun whose term expires Sept. 23.

The day after the election, a bomb blast in a fabrics store killed two persons and injured 15.

Thundershowers May Visit Area

Partly cloudy and scattered thundershowers may offer some relief from heat in the Twin Cities area today and tomorrow according to the federal forecaster.

High recorded at

Selma Field here yesterday was 95.

The low was 75.

The weather view for areas of Arkansas today and tomorrow also is for scattered thundershowers.

W. E. Briggs, of West Monroe, this past week tried his luck by visiting the diamond mine near Murefreesboro, Ark. While in the past a very few have been successful as to obtain gems of considerable value, one of which was by a Dallas, Tex. woman who discovered a diamond that was later valued at more than $20,000, such things are a rarity.

Briggs approached it from a new angle which is made possible by owners of the area where in the past a few diamonds have been found. The land owner now sells a square

Iraq Treads Softly On Baghdad Issue

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI)—Officials of the republican government hinted Friday that Iraq participated in the U.S.-backed Baghdad Pact, ended with the spokesman declaring "his work is finished here."

Kestell was not available to the press before his departure. But diplomatic sources said afterward that such a statement was logical since there was no indication the pact ever would operate in headquarters again.

The fact remained, however, that the revolutionary government for some reason did not want to state definitely that Iraq was withdrawn.

He added that Iraq would follow the interests of the whole Arab world in U.N. deliberations.

Kestell told a Polish correspondent merely that Iraq was examining the pact question but that you can see for yourself whether this pact has served the country's interests.

U.N. Secretary General Proposes Plan For Peace

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI)—

Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold

proposed a sweeping peace

plan for the Middle East

Friday at the opening of an emergency session of the United Nations General Assembly.

The 81-nation assembly met for 35 minutes in the opening session of the meeting called to consider

Middle East problems. The adjourned until next Wednesday was called to provide time for foreign ministers, including Russia's Andrei Gromyko and Britain's Selwyn Lloyd, to come here

The session was highlighted by a speech in which Hammarskjold indicated an international police force might be needed in Lebanon along with strengthening of the UN Palestine truce supervision organization to stabilize the situation in shaky Jordan.

Calls Upon Arabs

He called upon the Arab countries to reaffirm their pledges of mutual respect, non-aggression and non-interference as subscribed to in the principles of the Arab League.

Hammarskjold's peace plan appeared to spell out the institutions which could stabilize the situation in the crisis-ridden area as it had already created the Palestine truce supervision organization, the UN emergency force on duty in the Gaza Strip and the UN observer group in Lebanon.

Solh granted the interview in the government guest house. He has lived there since the recent attempt to assassinate him with a dynamite roadside mine as he drove from his mountain-top home to a cabinet meeting.

He made no specific proposals.

But he said the UN stood pre-

Concern Shown On Job Trend

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unemployment dipped slightly in July while the number of Americans holding jobs rose, but both trends were less favorable than the administration had hoped, the government reported Friday.

The Labor and Commerce Departments said in a joint report that employment climbed by 188,000 last month to a total of 65,179,000. The number of idle persons actively seeking work fell to 5,294,000, a drop of 143,000 from June's 17-year peak.

Both gains were smaller than usual for this time of year, however, with the result that the unemployment rate climbed from 6.8 per cent in June to 7.3 per cent in July after making allowances for this seasonal variation. The rate was 4.2 per cent a year ago.

The government report said the in the rate of unemployment.

ENGLISH ANGERED

AF 'Beats Retreat' To Jive In Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Tradition-minded Britons reacted with contained anger Friday at the U. S. Air Force drum and bugle corps, which dared to play jive on the Hallowed Horse Guards Parade Ground where Queen Elizabeth trots the colors.

"A desecration," snorted one officer of the Brigade of Guards who watched the airmen perform a hopped-up "beating the retreat."

It was invited to take part in the retreat ceremony by the War Office to give Britons a preview of their talents.

For many Britains, the preview was too much.

"Beating the retreat" is a solemn musical ceremony that accompanies the lowering of the flag at sundown.

The Americans, however, beat retreat with a mombo beat, blaring away at such popular hits as "Mambo Jambo," "Bali Hai," "Bloody Mary," and "Get Me To The Church On Time."

The Daily Telegraph said the performance was "more reminiscent of a Broadway chorus than a parade ground."

"Jive parade shocks Guards," headlined the Daily Sketch. "It took a stiff upper lip to watch," said the Daily Mail.

Stewart is to be arraigned on the federal charges next Wednesday.

Suspended

The Monroe City Council yesterday suspended the city beer license of a Negro businessman, after he was convicted of selling beer on Sunday. Ernest Ward, operator of Ward's Cafe, 1500 Grammont St., loses his right to sell beer at midnight tonight. His license will be valid again on September 1. Ward pled guilty to the violation in city court and paid a $150 fine.

Chicopee, Mass., turned out this country's first friction matches.

Groups Here Urge Keeping Bridge Plans

In an effort to prevent delay on start of construction of the new interstate highway bridge across the Ouachita River at Monroe, the City Council and the Chamber of Commerce urged yesterday that plans already proposed for the bridge's height and location be followed, without change.

Both groups stressed that they approve of a bridge to be constructed 38.2 feet above high flood stage of the River. High flood stage is 50.44 feet, and present plans call for the location of the bridge to be 88.64 feet above the riverbed, according to council members.

Last week, the Ouachita River Valley Improvement Association called for the bridge to be built 50 feet above the high flood stage.

The plans of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads and the Louisiana Highway Department specify that the bridge be 38.2 feet above high flood stage, and set July, 1959 for the start of construction.

Both the City Council and the

State Has $4-Million In Unused Lunch Funds

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. whether such accumulated, unenumbered funds could be returned to the state treasury. It represents money that has been accrued by school children's school districts do have, Jackson said. Jackson chose different words Friday to describe the same thing—four million dollars in unused June 30 in the 67 school items as school mill funds, since school lunch funds as of June 30.

Jackson did not say whether the $1,100,000 held in his office should be considered for surplus.

Sen. B. B. Rayburn, Bogalusa chairman of the legislative school lunch probe backed by Gov. Long, hunting for every spare state nickel, said his committee probably will resume hearings here next Thursday.

After a show from the governor last week, Rayburn, one of Long's key administration leaders, said he would reopen the meeting within a week or so.

Commissioner of Administration James S. Reily, making an independent survey of school lunch operations, free of the legislative committee, described after a private talk with Jackson Thursday what he said was approximately $4,100,000 in unencumbered funds in the school lunch program. That is another way of saying surplus money.

But Jackson Friday challenged any labeling of the money as surplus, insisting it was an operating reserve in the school lunch program.

The whole probe began weeks ago after newspaper accounts told how a previously uncovered surplus of nearly five million dollars in school lunch money was quickly spent at direction of Jackson's department.

The governor, Reily and Rayburn committee want to know

Says LSU Welcomes Criticism

BATON ROUGE (AP)—President Troy H. Middleton of Louisiana State University told 550 summer graduates Friday LSU welcomes constructive criticism and he hopes it will always be free "to think independently."

At the annual summer commencement, he said:

"I am aware of the fact LSU is not immune to criticism . . . We welcome criticism when made by informed people who stick to the facts and who criticize in a spirit of helpfulness."

He hopes, Middleton said, that LSU's faculty and personnel always will be free "to think independently, to act creatively and to behave responsibly."

Often the university finds a critic to be a person "who apparently does not know the facts," Middleton said, "has little idea of what is being done at LSU and has little information of the contributions the university is making to the state."

Middleton made an almost unprecedented appearance before a House legislative committee during the 1958 Legislature, after members were stirred by a Civil Liberties Union petition protesting impending legislation — later enacted — which allows public schools to be closed when threatened with integration. Sixty-six faculty members signed the petition.

At the time, Middleton strongly defended LSU, and emphasized racial integration is not being taught.

Middleton said LSU did not fare well in its request for support at the last session of the Legislature. But since this was the case with all state organizations, he continued, he believed LSU's failure to receive adequate funds was not a case of discrimination but "apparently a case of the barrel running dry."

Man Tells

Of Kidnapping

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A New Orleans business man Friday told a story of having been kidnapped, tied up and stabbed in a wooded spot in Mississippi by a man who said he was an escaped convict.

The man, Caswell P. Ellis III, told police that about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday he was driving on Highway 45 between Waynesboro and Meridian, Miss., and stopped at a cafe for a soft drink.

When he returned to his car a man concealed in the vehicle forced him to drive up a country road.

There, Ellis said, the man threatened to kill him and stabbed him in the back. Ellis said he offered to give the man some money and the man drove him to a phone booth where Ellis got his partner, in an Arabi, La., firm to wire him $300 to Mobile.

The partner, Bryan Bell, later confirmed that he had sent the money.

Then, Ellis said, he was forced to drive to Mobile where he turned over the money to the kidnapper and the man escaped.

Ellis said he then drove to a Mobile hospital and underwent an operation.

During the four-hour ride to Mobile, Ellis said, his captor identified himself as one of four escapees from the Alabama penitentiary about a month ago.

In Mobile, Police Captain Tally Rollings said officers were checking the case.

Safe Driver Dollars

More safety-consciousness for automobile drivers undoubtedly has been created by the National Safety Council than by any other organization or group in the United States. This is true because the safety council works unceasingly to impress upon people the necessity for safety.

Data supplied by the safety council says: "High school driver education is essential if our terrible toll of automobile accidents is ever to be reduced."

In more and more states, legislators, aghast at the mounting array of injuries and deaths on the highways, are turning to state financial support to driver education courses in high school as an important part of the solution to a serious traffic problem.

In two states — Connecticut and Michigan — drivers under 18 must satisfactorily complete a state-approved driver-education course before receiving licenses.

West Virginia has adopted legislation to recognize driver-education teachers on a 12-month basis and to approve necessary insurance expenditures.

Louisiana is one of the 12 states that have approved some sort of state appropriation for automobile driver courses for those under 18 years old and in high school. In 1955, this state, by general appropriation, first approved a 50-50 matching fund with a maximum of $15 state aid per pupil.

Almost as important as the bill itself, when legislation time comes around, is the publicity that is given to the proposed law. Several excellent methods have been used in various states to inform the public of the problem of financing good programs of driver education and to solicit support in passing legislation which would pay for driver education programs.

Louisiana computed a parish-by-parish survey comparing the cost of accidents with the cost of driver education for all eligible students.

Similar action was taken by Illinois. North Carolina made up a kit of 15 cards

Lucky With Horses

James R. Hoffa, president of the National Teamsters Union, is a lucky man, if making an easy dollar means anything. Hoffa receives a salary of $50,000 a year from the Teamsters, along with a nice bundle of extra cash for expenses.

Hoffa is a living example of the statement that "he that hath it shall be added unto," or words to that effect. He told senate investigators that "fortunate" race horse bets were responsible for $60,322 in extra income he received from 1948 to 1956. Hoffa vigorously denied in a shouting match with members of the senate race's committee that he got any part of an alleged $17,500 pay off Detroit laundry owners claim they gave a labor consultant friend of Hoffa to settle a labor dispute.

Most people who play the horses know it is a hard matter to beat them in the long run. The pari-mutuel operators get their percentage out of the betting, just as do the operators of any other gambling operation, which means that the gamblers, in the long run and on the average, get back somewhat less than they put into the betting.

If Hoffa got more than $60,000 in eight years by playing the ponies he was able to make the pay off more than

Lively 'Corpse'

Remember the anti-chain-store agitation of the 30's? Writing in The Freeman, Julian H. Handler recalls it—and has something significant to say: "Two decades ago, the friends of the independent food merchant were ready to serve as his pallbearers. The corporate chains were making such tremendous growth that proposed legislation to tax them to their death seemed to be the independent's last hope. The plan failed and the independent was left to stand or fall on his own merits in the battle for survival under free competition."

"In retrospect, the campaign for chain taxation may now be considered as having been, in the long run, a liability for the cause of the independent. This explaining the plan for financing driver education in that state. The Texas Federation of Women's clubs provided more than 600 roadside billboards which carried a message in support of financial aid to driver education.

Proof that state support of driver education programs is the boost needed to train our youth to be safe drivers is found in the fact that four states which passed enabling or permissive legislation in 1955 have increased the number of schools offering driver education by 75 per cent, although the national increase in schools offering the program was only 17 per cent. These states also increased the number of students trained by 141 per cent in the face of a national increase of only 22 per cent.

State laws setting up driver education programs do not compel the schools to offer driver education courses nor do they compel a student to take driver education.

High school driver education performs three vital functions. It teaches the student how to handle an automobile, it instructs him in the rules of driving and, most important of all, it gives him a degree of safety or caution-consciousness which he would not be likely to obtain in any other way.

Driver education in high school is considered one of the most important ways in which this country's terrible traffic toll can be materially reduced. In the matter of cutting accidents, it ranks along with adequate highways.

It has been found that four-lane highways, particularly those divided into two-lane strips, in which no opposing traffic is met, greatly reduce traffic accidents.

Both improved highways and driver education are vital if the traffic toll is to be reduced. Driver education, however, is far less costly and can reach adequate proportions far sooner than the construction of a complete system of adequate highways. Even with highways of the highest type, driver education would still be of tremendous importance.

Louisiana computed a parish-by-parish survey comparing the cost of accidents with the cost of driver education for all eligible students.

Similar action was taken by Illinois. North Carolina made up a kit of 15 cards most people get in salaries. That would make him look like a lucky man. Claiming he got the money by playing the horses would also make it look better in the sight of some than taking pay-off money for settling a labor dispute but the chances are pay-off money would be a lot more certain than playing the horses.

Hoffa could not explain exactly when and where he won the money but said his friend, Teamsters Vice-President Owen Bert Brennan of Flint, Mich., kept the records on their gambling ventures. But when Brennan was called to the witness stand he took refuge behind the fifth amendment, as his income tax returns were under investigation and he did not want to incriminate himself. He apparently has been having a good deal of the same kind of "luck" Hoffa enjoys.

Anyone who draws $50,000 a year salary as a Teamsters Union president should be content to devote all his activities to the interests of the Teamsters. Neither Hoffa nor his predecessor, Dave Beck has shown any tendency to do so. Both of them have engaged in activities that smack strongly of the most repugnant kind of gangsterism.

could be true in that it suggested that the independent was not a fully efficient distributor, but instead needed a brake put on his competitor as an equalizer.

"Furthermore, the independent has demonstrated that resourcefulness and co-operation are surer ways than government intervention to sustain progress and prosperity under the American system of free competition."

There has been an enormous growth in retail trade in all fields since the 30's—and the independents have gained their share. Those who forecast the independent merchant's impending death did him a gross injustice. He turned out to be the liveliest, most vital "corpse" anyone ever heard of.

A Word Of Caution

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Nationalism Strongest In Weakest Countries

NATIONALISM

Nationalism is an expression of the will of a people to be unified in their political life. In most instances, nationalism is strongest among the smaller and weaker peoples or those who have had the experience of being a colony or new states that have recently come into existence either by revolution or partition. Nationalism is weakest in such countries as the United States and Great Britain which seek a comity of peoples.

Nationalism is normal in history whether one thinks of the city states of Greece, the revolt of Bar Kochba against Rome, the emergence of the national states of Europe after the French revolution or the establishment of Israel after almost 2,000 years of Diaspora or the emergence of Arab nationalism in the Crescent of Fertility which surrounds the deserts, particularly the Western ones, after being held captive in the Ottoman Empire.

Such peoples as the Armenians or the Kurds or the Jews who have long been without lands of their own have maintained the strongest nationalistic concepts, often associated with religious sectarianism. They remain not only unconquered but resistant to absorption because of this nationalistic motivation which is subject neither to analysis nor logical explanation because it is one of the facts of history of which one says that it exists because it exists.

Nasser's Egyptianism at first gave the appearance of a revival after almost 2,000 years of Di-sympathy for its cause because whereas among the Great Powers, particularly the Western ones, internationalism usually prevails, there being a deep sympathy for the so-called underdog nations that are fighting for nationalism. Thus, Nasser evoked sympathy and friendship.

But he soon emerged as an imperialist of Hitleresque characteristics. His book, "Philosophy of the Revolution," mimics "Mein Kampf," and his desire to build an Arab state from the Atlantic to Pakistan is mindful of the Nazi postulates of Hitler, Rosenberg and the preceding Nazis.

Nasser's Egyptianism at first gave the appearance of a revival after almost 2,000 years of Di-

Not a single Arab state was liberated by Nasser or by a revolutionary movement. The twelve of them, all freed from the Ottoman Empire, were products of Western grants of independence and sovereignty. True, the motives of the West were not eleemosynary, but a fact is a fact whatever the motive.

Nasser's United Arab Republic is Nasser. There is no state; there is only a single, individual master.

The danger that Israel faces is that sooner or later it could be absorbed by Nasser into the United Arab Republic. This has been made possible by the American attitude during the Suez crisis, an attitude which is now generally admitted to have been an error. The resistance to Nasser in Lebanon, the willingness of the new government of Iraq to recognize its obligations to the West, the unwillingness of Libya, Sudan and Tunis to join him, are signs of the emerging Middle Eastern opposition to Nasser.

After all, Israel, Turkey and Iran are not Arab states at all; many of the African states, such as Algeria, Morocco, and Tunis have Western orientations and will not submit to Nasser's dictation.

It is impossible for Israel to organize a coalition with any Arab states because of the accelerated public opinion in Arab countries by radio and newspapers out of Cairo and Damascus. It would, for instance, be to the interest of such a country as Jordan to form an alliance with Israel, but that would now not be possible. Nevertheles, as Nasser goes too far in accumulating Arab states, Jordan will soon be forced to build protective against possible destruction. After all, Israel does have an effective military force and widespread diplomatic and political capacity.

The United States has guaranteed the independence of Israel, of the Baghdad Pact countries, and Great Britain is in the Baghdad Pact and is pledged to Jordan. Therefore it is not possible for the United States or Great Britain to refrain from impeding Nasser's imperialism, whereas they are pledged to support the emerging nationalism of all countries in this area, including the non-Arabic countries, Israel, Turkey and Iran.

This is a realistic view of the Middle Eastern situation, one that will face both Eisenhower and Khrushchev at Geneva when they meet. Out of it may come war; out of it may also come a discouragement for the further development of Nasser's imperialism, which is beneficial neither for the United States nor Soviet Russia in the long run.

RECURRING AILMENT — Rep. Brooks Hays, Dem.-Ark., finds a little humor in almost every situation. His latest chuckle: "Constantly recurring crises in the Middle East and the difficulty of analyzing the problem, remind me of the young doctor whose first patient had a strange disease. The doctor was baffled. Finally, in desperation, he asked, 'Have you ever had this before?' 'Yes,' the patient answered, 'twice.' 'Well,' the doctor said, 'you've got it again!'

ANNOYED AND CONFUSED — Letters strongly for and strongly against the humane slaughter bill which passed the Senate recently came in by the hundreds to the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Chairman Allen Ellender of Louisiana, a staunch Democrat, is still puzzled over this letter addressed to him: "If you don't pass this bill I'll never vote for a Republican Administration again."

AND NOW MINK — It's not just across the Potomac from Washington, carried an eye-catching photograph on the day President Eisenhower dispatched troops to the Middle East, taking the play away from the Coldine-Adams scandals. The photo showed the largest shipment (over nine million tablets) of aspirin ever to arrive in Washington.

BIGHEARTEDNESS — Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas joined Sen. George Smathers of Florida in a television interview. Smathers asked Johnson if Texans took it pretty hard when they had to relinquish their claim of biggest state in the Nation to Alaska. Not at all said Johnson, adding: "We Texans think big. We try to act big, and we certainly welcome the biggest state in the Union. We're glad that she's in."

THESE FABLED TIMES — Rep. Craig Hosmer, Rep.-Calif., is reminded of a story that made the rounds during the Suez crisis now that new troubles have erupted in the Middle East. It's about the scorpion that asked the turtle to give him a ride across the Suez Canal since the scorpion couldn't swim. "I would but you'd sting me and I'd die," insisted the turtle.

"Why would I want to do that?" asked the scorpion. "If I stung you, I'd never get to the other side." The turtle gave in, the scorpion climbed on its back and off they went. Half way across the scorpion stung the turtle. "Why did you do that, you said you wouldn't sting me," cried the turtle. "Well, this is the Middle East, you know," replied the scorpion, and they both sank to the bottom.

Positive Religion Emphasizes Love

Newspapermen like Fred Giese, president of the "Universities in Print" which may have half a million daily "students" (readers). And every good newspaper tries to stimulate thinking and move civilization onward. So discuss this care in church and remember that religion is a dynamic, growing concept and not a dead, sterile code.

Case V-384: Fred W. Giese, aged about 58, is the generalissimo at the Cincinnati POST. We have been friends for over 20 years so I decided to take advantage of a few hours between planes and run in to see him from the airport.

And we had a stimulating visit. I told him about the new Scientific Marriage Foundation and its aid in matching cultured people who are tied down by their work so they haven't adequate opportunity to meet suitable members of the opposite sex.

This group includes school teachers, nurses and private secretaries, as well as scientists, business men and merchants who must stay on the job sometimes 6 days per week.

Mr. Giese gave me some excellent suggestions, and I finally caught the limousine for the Airport.

As I rode along, I noticed a large school building with this motto inscribed above the entrance:

"Come, Children, I will teach you the fear of the Lord."

Housecleaning in Religion

Well, that old-fashioned notion is as out-of-date as the bleeding of medical patients to break their fever.

Medicine and science in general have thus thrown out many obsolete concepts. It is high time Religion also did a housecleaning.

Can you imagine a modern mother calling her children around her with the announced aim:

"Come, Children, I will teach you the fear of your Daddy."

God Almighty told us in the first chapter of this book that God is a loving parent.

So let's discuss the positive outlook as exemplified in the Golden Rule and quit terrifying children with outmoded doctrines that God is a vindictive sadist who delights in torturing youngsters by fear.

And please don't go off half-cocked with vitriolic letters to your editor, attacking me for giving you these new viewpoints.

Good newspapers are supposed to stimulate thinking and challenge outmoded ideas, even in the realm of religion!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long 4 cent stamp, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his books.)

Eats By Humans Often Dangerous

There are between 2,000 and 3,000 cases of snake venom poisonings (ophidiasis) in the United States annually. The majority of victims are children and out-door workers.

Ophidiasis is an occupational disease among professional and amateur snake collectors, scientists, museum curators, showmen, and religious faddists. Dr. Henry M. Parish interviewed 41 persons in Florida who intentionally handle snakes for a variety of reasons. Some "milk" snakes routinely for their venom, which is used for medicinal purposes. Others handle them when lecturing or in their work as curators or collectors.

Of this group, 78 per cent (32) had bitten 1 to 12 times. Snakes in captivity had inflicted 56 of the bites; 26 were from reptiles in their natural habitat. The majority occurred when the handlers were inattentive, took unnecessary chances, or underestimated the ability of the snake.

of the stars, operated perfectly—it was "in trouble at no point whatsoever." The sub was under the ice pack for about four days, or 1,830 miles.

Anderson said he and his men discovered that the ocean under the pole was 13,410 feet deep—or more than 2½ miles. This is 1,827 feet deeper than had been believed previously.

Average Speed 20 Knots

From Hawaii to the Atlantic the Nautilus cruised at an average speed of 20 knots and was under water about 97 per cent of the time.

Anderson, who commanded the Nautilus when it cruised part way under the Arctic ice pack last year, was brought off the submarine by helicopter just 14 hours before he was honored by the President.

Anderson recounted some of the possible hazards of the voyage, which equalled thefeat of the sub's fictional namesake in Jules Verne's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea."

Lauding the remarkable navigation job of his men, he said it was possible to get so confused near the pole that a vessel might wind up going in a circle. He described this problem as "longitude roulette."

The Defense Department said the Nautilus was completely out of touch with the outside world while it was under the arctic ice.

Low Bidders Are Named In Road Program

Low bidders have been announced for road improvement in Franklin and Catahoula parishes, by R. B. Richardson, director of high ways.

The La. Department of Highways took under advisement low bids amounting to $184,948 for the road improvement project in a total of five parishes.

The low bidders by parishes are as follows:

Graham - Base course, sand, clay and gravel furnished, placed and spread, 4.9 miles, Lamothe Bridge.

Tangipahoa - Washed gravel, furnished and spot-dumped, 4.5 miles, designated parish roads, Anderson Gravel Co., Amite, $447.

Uses Toy Gun In N.O. Holdup

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A huge Negro with a toy pistol held up a grocery store cashier here Friday, then was shot and wounded by the father of the cashier and finally subdued.

The robbery occurred at the store of Joseph Aiavolasti on downtown Esplanade Avenue.

The store owner grabbed a pistol after watching the man rob his son of about $50 at the cash register, followed the intruder and fired one shot.

The bullet hit the Negro in the groin. Then the wounded man grappled with the father and the son over the pistol, but was subdued after collapsing on the sidewalk from loss of blood.

Solution

It was a very small house where two ladies resided each seeking a private phone.

But, said the man making the installation, why not a single phone with an extension?

"Oh no, that would not do at all," the elder of the pair replied. "You see when we get into a personalities clash, we just call each other up and straighten out all matters that need attention!"

From there he will go to Montreal, Canada for a two-weeks genetics congress sponsored by the John Hopkins university.

Brussels - Bound

Mr. and Mrs. Rannie Terrell of Farmersville will leave Monroe by Southern Airlines this afternoon on the first leg of a trip to the Brussels Fair.

While in Europe, the couple will also visit Paris and London. Their return home is scheduled for August 24.

State Courts

Seven persons pled guilty to offenses in State Court this week with Judge W. M. Harper presiding. The next session of court will be on Aug. 21.

David W. McCaa was fined $50 after he pled guilty to speeding 90-miles per hour.

Four persons admitted charges of reckless driving, John R. Rhodes and Jay G. Morris each were fined $10 while Derrick K. Daily and C. L. Houston Jr. were fined $25 each. Houston received an alternate of 25 days in jail, if he decided not to pay the fine.

Harlan Moore pled guilty to allowing an unlicensed minor to drive a car and was fined $10.

Walter Pippin, who admitted driving without a license on July 24, was given a choice of a $15 fine or 25 days in jail.

The case against Buron Armstrong, charged with driving with a 1958 license plate on July 24, was continued until August 21.

Five persons charged with non-support pled guilty and drew 12 months suspended jail sentences. Each was placed on probation.

Middlecoff Has Neat 64 To Tie Harney For Lead

By CHUCK CAPALDO

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Tournamenteer Cary Middlecoff erupted from a closely packed pack Friday with a 6-under-par 64 and tied young Paul Harney for the 36-hole lead in the $35,000 Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament. Both have 13s, nine under par.

One stroke behind them in the battle for the $5,000 first prize over the Trippoli Golf Club par 35-35-70 acreage was a 22-year-old South African, round-faced Gary Player of Johannesburg.

Two strokes off the pace at 133 were three seasoned pros, Jim Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., Lionel Hebert, of Lafayette, La., and Ernie Vossler of Midland, Tex., who shared the first round lead with Harney with a record-equaling 63. Vossler took an even par 70 Friday.

A variable wind with just enough oomph to cause trouble prevented a repeat of Thursday's par breaking binge by 32 of the 140 man field. Even so, 35 turned in sub-par rounds.

Ennis' Slammer Wins For Cards

CHICAGO (AP) — Del Ennis hit the sixth grand slam homer of his big league career to break up a pitching duel between Vinegar Bend Mizell and Dick Drott and give the St. Louis Cardinals a 6-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday.

A paid throng of 17,310 watched the first meeting of the teams since May 13.

Mizell scattered six hits, but it remained for Ennis to crack a 1-1 tie in the sixth with his bases-loaded clout of Drott, who had pitched a one-hitter for five innings.

Curt Flood hit a none-on homer leading off the Cardinal seventh which chased Drott and anchored the young Cub right-hander with his ninth setback against only four victories. Last year Drott had a 15-11 record.

It was the eighth triumph against as many defeats for Mizell, who yielded a run in the first and then blanked the Cubs until they scored two unearned runs in the eighth.

Ernie Banks walked, stole second and scored on Bobby Thomson's single for a 1-0 Cub lead in the first.

Wall Moon's second inning double was the only St. Louis hit. Drott collapsed in the sixth, Don Blasingame led off the inning with a single and after Gene Freese also singled, Stan Musial was intentionally walked, filling the bases.

Ken Boyer's long fly scored Blasingame to tie it at 1-1. Moon was intentionally walked which brought on Ennis and his grand-slam homer. It was Ennis' third homer of the season, a shot which cleared the left field screen.

Don Elston and Bob Anderson followed Drott for the Cubs.

Banks' single, a dropped ball on a force play, an infield out and Jim Bolger's single produced the two unearned Cub tallies in the eighth.

2-0 GAME

Yanks Blank Red Sox Behind Ford

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey Ford lost record, lost this one before pitched his seventh shutout of the season, holding Boston to three Yankee first with a single to right and sped home on Kubek's double to right center.

Hank Bauer's single and Tony Kubek's hit and run double produced a Yankee run off Oke DeLoach in the first inning. They added another score off Bud Byrly in the eighth, boosting their American League lead over the Red Sox to 16½ games.

A crowd of 43,606 saw the chunky left-hander win his 14th against five defeats.

The Red Sox got to Ford for two hits in the fourth inning. Pete Runnels led off with a single to center but Frank Malzone grounded into a fast double play. Jackie Jensen looped a double to short but was cut down trying to stretch it into a triple. Gil McDougald retrieved the ball after Bauer missed a try for a shoe-string catch and Kubek relayed the toss to Andy Carey for the out.

Ford struck out six and walked four. He passed Malzone with two out in the first. Runnels with two out in the sixth and both Jensen and Bill Renna in the seventh when the Yanks' second double play of the night pulled him out of trouble.

Lepcio who was leading the American League batters going into Friday's schedule, had a single in three official trips to maintain his .335 average.

DeLoach, who now has a 10-3 won-loss record, lost this one before

Pelican Girls State Is Attended By Many

Mrs. H. Flood Madison, Girls State Chairman, of the L. B. Faulk Unit No. 13 of the American Legion Auxiliary states that the following girls have been chosen by popular vote of their respective student bodies to do the privilege of attending Girls State in Baton Rouge.

The objective of the Girls State as being a mythical 50th state is to educate our youth in the due with a constitution, statutes and ordinances constructed by its citizens, privileges, rights and responsibilities of American citizens to govern themselves. It is wholly a plan for training. Citizens of Girls State will not in the practical mechanics of only be required to review knowledge. Applications of the edge already acquired concerning principles of democratic government, the political machinery of a state, are made every possible but they will find themselves per- way. The Constitution and the sta- forming exactly the same duties as the state of Louisiana are real officeholders in the every day patterns from which the fun-world. In Girls State, citizens of the fundamental law of Pelican Girls ganize their own officials in accordance with regular election procedures. They learn the duties of the various city, parish and state officers. They introduce and argue their own bills in a legislature. Justice is administered by their own law enforcement agencies and courts. In Girls State, the young citizen has the opportunity to learn for herself that her government is just what she makes it. Here each girl "learns to do."

My mother got mad at me and called my dad on the phone. He came over and gave me a beating with his belt.

This sort of thing happens From St. Matthew's will be every few months. Last time it was because my mother saw me sitting in my boy friend's car for five minutes after a date.

I intend to leave home as soon as I can do so legally. In the meantime do I have to take this? —M.J.Y.

Ask an adult (teacher, friend relative or clergyman) to notify the juvenile authorities. The treatment you describe is cruelty.

Your mother is taking her bitterness out on you, and your dad doesn't sound like a very contented person, either. They are both in need of professional help. In the meantime no child should have to tolerate such brutality.

Dear Ann: My husband and his older brother are "friendly enemies" if you know what I mean. They are in business together and draw the same amount although my husband is harder-working and far more capable.

For years my brother-in-law and his wife ridiculed us, called us "tight" because we drove an old model car. I never owned a good fur coat. Our three sons had paper routes and bought their own bikes. (Their boys loafed and were always in trouble at school.) They've lived on a high scale for the past 15 years, entertaining, traveling and putting on the dog in general.

Last week my husband and I looked at a two family dwelling. We want to buy it, move in and rent the other side. Now his brother says he'd like to buy it with us and move in, too—but he hasn't got any money. He wants us to put up the entire down payment and pay us back monthly, like rent.

I say no. My husband is undecided. He has a soft spot for his brother. Your opinion? —Josephine

That "soft spot" is in his head. Your husband should know that money costs money. Why should he make a gift of the property to his brother who has been eating high on the hog all these years? If you're wise you'll say no, and

Dear Ann: I'm a high school girl just turned 16. My mother and dad have been living apart for five years. I'm an only child and the way I'm treated I'm glad I have no brothers or sisters.

Last night I accidentally left a bar of soap in the bathtub. We kept company and were very happy.

One day she decided to go back to her husband for the children's sake. I wished her well although it broke my heart. I felt it would be best for everyone concerned. She calls me on the phone every evening, begging me to see her again. I've refused, saying it will just start the whole thing over, and I advised her to make the best of her marriage and forget about me. She says she knows now she can never get a divorce, but she can't live without me. What shall I do? —Need Help

This woman is trying to eat her cake and have cookies, too. Eliminate yourself from her life permanently and tell her not to phone again.

Date other women and think in terms of a solid respectable life for yourself. Why live in the shadows when the sunlight is so grand?

Informal Afternoon Party Given Miss Sandra Ellis

An informal afternoon party complimenting Miss Sandra Ellis of McGhee, Arkansas, was the medium for bringing together a group of the younger set with Miss Sylvia Gentry the hostess.

Miss Ellis, a house guest in the Parker Colvin home, was lovely in a black and white linen ensemble with matching accessories.

After an interlude of stimulation, the guests were invited into the pine paneled den where a lazy Susan table was overlaid with a cut-work damask cloth. The focal point being an arrangement of fresh fruit and summer flowers. Mrs. Parker Colvin poured frosted punch from an antique ironstone punch bowl.

Crystal sandwich plates laden with confections, sandwiches and pecan pralines were passed to the guests by Miss Joyce Turpin, Miss Norma Jean Holcomb and Miss Fran Guthrie.

Those invited to this delightful party were Miss Sandra Ellis, honoree, Miss Suzanne Allison of New Orleans, Miss Maide Jean Strickland, Miss Louise Inabnett, Miss Louise Lester, Miss Milly Hishop, Miss Kay Anderson, Miss Evelyn Amman, Miss Joyce Turpin, Miss Linda Collet, Misses Suzy and Nancy Cantrel, Miss Rebecca Huenefeld, Miss Gretchen Masur, Miss Carolyn Cummings, Miss Jeanette Brooks, Miss Sue Humble, Miss Fran Guthrie, Miss

Chapter 33

The elaborate meal Bill Condon had ordered lay on the table between them, untouched. The restaurant was becoming more crowded now and sounds of music and laughter pushed in on their privacy.

"What was it you wanted to say?" Bill asked in a self-conscious voice. "It didn't occur to me you'd be upset because I'm leaving for Paris . . ."

"Why didn't you?" the girl demanded. Then she plunged on. "I'm in love with you, Bill. I always have been, since the first night I saw you. You know that. You must know it."

His calmness was maddening. "You think you love me, Carol, and yet you agreed to consider marrying Enrique Saudia."

"What else could I do?" she demanded. "I didn't want to hurt his feelings, but Enrique has nothing do with us. Nothing at all."

"I don't believe you know what you want, Carol."

"You asked me to marry you, only a few weeks ago," she reminded him.

"I didn't know about Enrique then . . ."

She tried again, determined to follow Linda's advice. "Darling, please understand. I don't love Enrique. I never did."

"You agreed to think about marrying him," Bill insisted stubbornly.

"To get away from me?"

"Yes. I can't go on fighting my emotions all the time."

"But why should you be fighting? Why can't we get married, Bill, please . . .?" She was horrified to hear herself pleading with him.

He, too, was distressed. "It's no good, Carol. There are too many questions in my mind."

"Are you still thinking of Don Henderson?"

"I don't know. Perhaps. You were going to consider marrying him, too. Remember?"

"Bill! I didn't even know you then!"

"I'm being awkward at this. I'm sorry."

Suddenly something occurred to her. "Are you trying to say you don't love me? Is that it?"

He hesitated, then. "All right. Let's put it that way. Isn't it better to be honest?"

Carol was hurt, too hurt for words, both at him and at her own stupidity. She rose. "I'll take a taxi . . ."

"Carol . . . I'll be glad to take you home . . ."

Her voice was flat. "It won't be necessary, Bill. Goodbye. Good luck with the new job."

Somehow she escaped, and once in the street found a taxi. The driver, noting her tears was properly sympathetic.

"A drive around the park, Se-norita? Very good for the nerves."

"No," Carol managed. "Just go to the hotel, please."

Under other circumstances she might have been amused at his sad, dark eyes, his Latin interest in her problem, but at the moment, flight was her only consideration.

The night was warm, the streets of Buenos Aires as exciting, foreign, intriguing as ever but through her tear-blurred eyes, Carol could see only the frown on Bill Condon's face.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
